to the divisional depots and, from that point, are issued to the regiments according to their needs. The regiments draw perishable foods every three days from the divisional depots and, in the case of other foods, every ten days.

- 4. At the present time I know of no plan in the Soviet Army for moving supply dumps toward the west prior to hostile action, and I do not know what the level of stock on hand must be at supply installations before the Soviet Armed Forces would be committed to combat operations. Emergency rations, including all classes of supplies, ie, food, Soviet manufactured field kitchens, POL supplies, weapons, and ammunition are stored separately from current supplies. They are accounted for in special books which are classified Top Scoret. Tobacco, tea and spices are sent from the USSR to Germany. Food items produced in Germany and delivered to GOFG as reparations by the German Government are as follows: meat, macaroni all types of greats, sugar, canned fish and meat, herring fish, flour, fruit preserves, butter, lard, octatoes, vegetables and cigarettes.
- 5. Such supplies as uniforms and equipment which are produced in the Soviet Zone in excess of the requirements of the Soviet Army in Germany, are shipped to the USSR. Gasoline is also shipped to the USSR. near Brest, gasoline being unloaded at Zhebinka, 25 kilometers from Brest, for transshipment to the USSR.
- 6. Only chemical warfare protective equipment such as gas masks, protective covers, protective clothing, etc, is kept at divisional and regimental supply points. There are no special items of chemical warfare equipment in the supply points of the lower echelons. I believe that such items are kept in the GOFG supply point in Finsterwalde. The 9th Division chemical supplies are stored in Riesa.
